

REPUBLICAN PARTY OF PA. HAS TAKEN SIDE OF DECENCY AND SQUARE DEAL IN CONSPICUOUS IS SUES BEFORE VOTERS

Pinchot Outlines His Platform and Tells His Attitude On Questions Uppermost in The Minds of The People—
Question of Prohibition Is Secondary, He Says

By Gifford Pinchot

Republican Candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania

(Written Expressly for I. N. S.)

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29.—The Republican party of Pennsylvania has taken the side of decency and the square deal in the two most conspicuous issues now before the people of the United States. One of them is the utility issue.

The principal plank in the platform upon which I was nominated is the abolition of the present Public Service Commission. This commission has been consistently unfair to the people and consistently overpaid to the utilities. It must be replaced by a fair rate board, organized to give the people a square deal and to provide a square deal to the utilities from the people.

By fair treatment to the utilities, I do not mean the unlimited right to gouge the public nor to earn 100 per cent or 1,000 per cent, as not uncommonly happens, upon every dollar invested in the business. But I do mean a fair and even a liberal return on the actual investment.

The second of the great issues is Prohibition. My attitude toward it remains precisely what it was during my first term. The Democratic wets, and the scattering of Republican renegades who are threatening to go over to them, appear to think that the one great question which agitates the people of Pennsylvania is how to get a drink.

I am of the opinion that a far greater question, of far more consequence to many more people, is the question of how to get a job and earn a living. The present unemployment situation is not easy to solve, for it is not only state-wide and nation-wide but world-wide, and it has many causes. I do promise, and it would be dishonest to promise more, to give my best attention to it and to recognize not only in word but in deed the vast importance of keeping all the people well-fed, well-clothed and well-employed.

There is another issue in the campaign of tremendous importance to the people. No one thing is more essential to the permanent success of the Republican party in Pennsylvania, or more important to the Republican party in the nation, than a complete clean-up of election conditions in the leading Republican state. However much local pride may shy at an acknowledgment of the actual facts, the truth is, and we all know it, that elections in certain parts of Pennsylvania are notoriously crooked, have long been crooked and will continue to be crooked until the law-abiding citizens of the state rise up and call a halt.

One of the foremost duties of the next administration will be to secure the introduction of clean election bills in the Legislature and leave no stone unturned until they are passed. The vast majority of the voters of this state are sick and tired, and rightly so, of election corruption. The time for a clean-up has come.

Certain disgruntled political leaders, incited and supported by certain public utilities, are refusing to abide by the rules of the game and accept the decision of the voters in the Republican primary. With no regard for party or principle, but driven by the desire of their masters to control the government, they purpose to bring about the election of a wet Democrat. The defection of these masqueraders is neither respectable nor important. It will be made good and more than good, by thousands of Democratic voters, who refuse to approve the alliance between the worst elements of their party and the worst elements of ours.

The platform, upon which I run, including its public utility and clean election planks, was approved by the Republican party when it nominated me. The Republican party is as much bound by it as I am myself. I reiterate my pledge to use the full power of the Governorship to carry out the planks of that platform and I call upon every Republican, loyal to the party, to help in carrying out this pledge.

ANDALUSIA

Misses Rhoda Wilkins, Virginia Oliver, Evelyn Nelson and Edith Dunner spent Sunday afternoon with Miss Joey Funk, who lives in Holmesburg.

On Thursday evening the P. O. of A. Lodge sponsored a masque dance in the P. O. S. of A. Hall in Cornwells Heights. Miss Bella Reikle won a cedar chest of candy for wearing the fancy costume. Mrs. "Al" Rigby and Mrs. McElwee won the prizes for the most comic costume. These prizes were candy.

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Jackson celebrated their fifth wedding anniversary on Saturday evening by having a card party. Six games of pinocle were played. Mrs. Mabel Kirk won the first prize for ladies, a very pretty cracker jar. Mrs. Norman Fries won the second prize, a jar of bath salts. Norman Fries won the first men's prize, a beautiful silk scarf; and Earl Fries, the second men's prize, linen handkerchiefs. Mrs. Earl Fries won the "booby" prize for ladies, a pair of salt and pepper shakers; and Harry Oliver won the "booby" for men, an ash receiver. After the games were finished coffee, home-made cakes, cider, pretzels, ginger snaps, and pop corn were served, after which a game called "coffee pot" was played. Arthur Towle and Ernest Wichterman, accompanied by Mrs. Edgar Huey at the piano, rendered several selections which everyone enjoyed. Mr. and Mrs. Jackson were the recipients of very beautiful gifts. Those who helped to celebrate were: Mrs. Mary Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Fries, Mrs. Emma Fries, Charles Fries, Robert Fries, Miss Dorothy Trummer, Harold Jackson, Russell Jackson, William Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. George Keaton, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Oliver, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wichterman, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Fries, Mrs. Mabel Kirk, Arthur Towle, Mr. and Mrs. James Cunningham, Mr. and Mrs. John Curtis, Miss Helen Strycker, Leslie Temple, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Huey, Miss Ada Sooy and Albert Parry.

Mr. Turner and her granddaughter Miss Elizabeth Deckert, enjoyed the performance at the Holme Theatre on Thursday evening.

UNIQUE AND INTERESTING PROBLEM PRESENTED BY MRS. KATHERINE DELANEY, WHO WILL APPEAR AT COURIER'S COOKING AND HOME-MAKING SCHOOL

Shows Women How to Cook and Bake So Surely That Kitchen Hours Are Cut in Half, Then Makes Cookery So Absorbing That Housewives Dislike to Leave the Kitchen

Here's a pretty problem. Mrs. Katherine Delaney of the DeBoth Home Makers' Schools who is to appear in Bristol under the auspices of the Bristol Courier and give her series of popular demonstrations and talks on cookery on the evenings of November 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th, has created a situation for feminine minds to dwell upon. She shows the women in her audience how to cook and bake so surely, deftly and easily that kitchen hours can be cut in half—and then right on top of that she makes cookery so absorbing and interesting and such fun that her pupils scarcely want to leave the kitchen at all.

The first thing her very feminine audience observes and ponders is the charm of her appearance. Kitchen work in days gone by has often been associated with big aprons and oldish house dresses and worried frowns, to say nothing of burnt fingers and dishes that went wrong—and here is this smiling, attractive woman, as crisp and neat as though there couldn't be any soil in a kitchen, as calm and pleasant and unhurried as possible and yet—

It makes no seeming difference if she is making cakes, meat dishes, vegetables, soups, desserts, a family dinner or a party luncheon. Ingredients leap together, raw materials become a feast, each perfect in outline, appearance, flavor and digestiveness, and all done so easily and happily without a spot or a sputter. It would be a dull mind indeed that did not say, "If one woman can do it—I can."

It begins to dawn on the individual members of her audience that all this kitchen magic is just the result of a sure knowledge, the demonstration of how to solve problems whose difficulties in the past has been merely lack of scientific study. These problems have been studied in the laboratory and test kitchen of the DeBoth Home Makers' Schools—where all the lessons have been given.

More than one job of "homemaking" has been given up because the homemaker felt so drab and dull in her house work and all about her the modern business girl was demonstrating how very nice a woman could look and still be busy. The old fashioned kitchen was passing before the march of the kitchenette and old fashioned home cookery was retreating before the frown of the delicatessen.

"Instead of abolishing the home," said Mrs. Delaney of the De Both Home Makers' Schools let us abolish the kitchen draw-backs, reduce the effort, cut the hours, change labor to fun, adopt methods as modern as the utensils and appliances we now have to work with, and allow women to retain her greatest privilege and blessing, the ability to make a home rather than to merely ornament a house."

TREVOSE YOUTHS WIN DISTRICT SCOUT MEET

Four Troops* Represented At
The Affair Held at Trevoze Hall

VARIETY OF "STUNTS" REFRESHMENTS SERVED

TREVOSE, Oct. 29.—Before a large assemblage of Scouts, Scout leaders and parents, Trevoze Boy Scout Troop No. 1 carried off first honors and was officially announced the champion of the West Bucks District Scout Meet. The meet was held in the Trevoze community house through the cooperative efforts of the Trevoze Troop Committee, A. B. Davidson, chairman. Four troops were represented in the meet and the final results show: Trevoze No. 1, first place; Churchville No. 1, second place; Warminster No. 1, third place, and the newly-organized Siles, No. 1, coming up in fourth place.

Promptly at 7.30 the knot-tying event began which was won by Scout Jack Gruver, Trevoze No. 1. Gas rescue race, Trevoze, Churchville, and Trevoze, giving the local boys the first and third place in this event. The still race, one of the fun events of the meet was won by William Tomlinson, of Churchville; and second place was taken by John Barcalaw, of Trevoze. The signaling contest followed, ably managed by Ralph B. Scheffey, of Bristol, who sent by buzzer a fifteen word sentence containing every letter in the alphabet. Three teams of two boys per team crouched on the floor and eagerly fought for mastery of the series of dots and dashes that permeated the atmosphere. The results of this instructive and interesting event show Earl Meyers and Robert Krier, Trevoze, first place; Webster Lee and Harry Meyers, Trevoze, second place, and D. Williamson and J. Biedler, Ivyland, third place.

Following signaling was the big fun event of the evening. Two boys from the same troop stood inside burlap sacks and were bound together with cord. They then, together with boys from the other troops, tried to run, jump, hop, or roll to the finish line. The winners of the sack race were: James Cornell, Robert Slack, Churchville; James Cummings, W. Smith, Trevoze; A. Burns, E. Williamson, Ivyland. A nature contest followed which was won by James Gruver, Trevoze; James Cornell, Churchville; J. Biedler, Ivyland. The whittling or carving project was taken by James Phillips, Trevoze; D. Williams, Ivyland; A. Cleo, Trevoze. An eight tug was next which gave Trevoze another first followed by Churchville and Siles. The exhibition Boy Scout drill was entered by Trevoze alone and twelve Scouts, led by Scout Samuel Cordasco did some very commendable stepping. At the close of the drill everyone went out into the night to witness a fire-building contest which was won by James Cummings, Trevoze; Harry Rice, Trevoze; Franklin Finney, Churchville.

Engagement Announced At Delightful Card Party

Miss Edith McConnell entertained the bridge club, of which she is a member and a number of other guests at her home in Bensalem on Monday evening.

The decorations were suited to the Halloween season. Black cats leaped to the doortops and old witches stirred their magic potions as six tables of bridge were formed.

At the conclusion of the card playing a sumptuous repast was served consisting of chicken patties, peas, mint jelly, olives, celery, buttered rolls, coffee, ice-cream, French pastry, nuts and mints.

The surprise of the evening came when each guest was given an English walnut fastened together with hearts. These upon being opened announced the engagement of the hostess, Miss Edith J. McConnell, and James S. Reid, of Germantown.

Guests were present from Philadelphia, Morrisville, Bristol, Eddington, Cornwells and Andalusia.

Those receiving prizes were: Joyce Wislar, Caroline Boehm, Annie Heritage, Louise Waters and Hilda Wanamaker.

FIREMEN ENJOY FINE ENTERTAINMENT PROGRAM

Music, Mirth, Boxing Bouts
Rule at Fire House
Gathering

OFFICERS NOMINATED

Officers were nominated, four new members proposed, a program of entertainment given and boxing bouts staged last night at the quarterly meeting of the Consolidated Fire Department in the Municipal Building.

The meeting attracted a large crowd and the assembly room in the municipal fire station was crowded.

After the routine business had been completed the following officers were nominated to be elected at the January meeting:

President, Clifford L. Anderson; vice-president, John Y. Turner; secretary, Serrill D. Dettleson; treasurer, Jacob L. Hellman; trustees—Albert G. Lochner, Anthony Russo and John S. Roberts, Jr.

There were four acts of professional vaudeville which made a decided "hit" with the gathering.

The "Fire House Troubadours," a musical organization composed of members of the fire department, appeared for the first time. This group of 12 musicians and a director gave a most creditable performance and were accorded very generous applause.

Two lively boxing tilts were staged by "Eddie" Moffo when he and his brother, "Sammy" gave a fine exhibition of the manly art and Johnny Straffe and his brother, Young Kid Straffe, donned the padded mits. These bouts were staged on the apparatus door and pleased all.

A light lunch was served and those who had contributed to the pleasure and enjoyment of the evening were roundly applauded.

Chief James L. McGee reported a total of 42 alarms answered during the past three months, as follows:

Property fires, 13; grass and rubbish fires, 14; sign boards, 1; false alarms, 3; out of town fires, 6; automobile fires, 5.

Loss to property within the borough, $3270; loss to contents of property within the borough, $890; loss to property outside of borough, $10,525; loss to contents of property outside of borough, $3,399, making in all a total fire loss within and without the confines of borough of $17,895.

Sabbath Schools' Plans In County Are Outlined

A meeting of the executive committee of the Bucks County Sabbath School Association was held at the home of Mrs. Emma G. Layman, Doylestown, Friday evening, October 24th.

A majority of all officers and superintendents were present and showed a keen interest as Rev. Samuel E. Moyer, president, outlined plans for work in the county for the year.

It is generally conceded that the county organization is stronger today than for some time past, due largely to the aggressive and untiring efforts of the president, who at this time asks not only a 100% co-operation of the county officers and superintendents, but that of the various district officers as well.

Traveler Will Speak To Students at High School

A well-known orator and author, Leon Ray Livingston, is to address pupils at the Bristol high school auditorium on Friday morning, delivering two talks, one at nine o'clock, and the second at 10 o'clock.

Mr. Livingston has had a unique and checkered career, and his subject is to be "Where Is My Wandering Boy Tonight?"

The man, who has travelled in many countries, running away from home when but a lad, has been known by his sign "A-No. 1." Over the period of 30 years in which he roamed he covered 52,000 miles on $7.61 in the United States, and in foreign lands.

BUCKS CO. AWAKES TO WELCOME SOUND OF A NEEDED RAIN

Upper Section of Bucks Has Been Suffering More Than Lower

MANY CARRY WATER

Hopes Held Out That Rain
Will Continue; New Wells Dug

Bucks County awakened this morning to the gladsome music of rain!

And long before the entire households were awake many mistresses of the homes had buckets, pails and tubs placed under every available rain-spout. The tinkling sounds of the raindrops on the receptacles formed notes that fitted together in a way far superior to any of the noted composers' compositions—that is to those who have been in real need of water.

Bucks County, according to County Farm Agent Greenwalt, is dry, but not quite so dry as some other sections of the county. The section of Bucks that has noticed the drought most keenly is in Milford Township. There the need has been more keen than in the lower section of the county, but even in lower Bucks "Save water" has been the cry.

In Bensalem Township many farmers are and have been carrying water or their cattle for weeks, or else driving said cattle to nearby streams. Emille folks have noticed the lack of water, and there wells have gone dry that have never been void of water before.

Along Bath Road at nearly any hour of the day during the past few weeks water-carriers could be seen, paying a visit to a neighbor, carrying a pail or bucket. New wells were dug by some residents of that section; while still other families have to struggle along on two or three buckets a day.

In many instances residents of Hulmeville borough have been carrying water for the past month or more. Some secure their supply from wells if neighbors, while others find their source in the Neshaminy Creek. A few of the men of the town face the job each evening of driving the family flivver to the creek banks, there to fill up a large wash-bowl with the valued aqua.

On one small street in Newportville there are approximately a dozen families, all of whom are depending upon two wells.

One housewife, not far from Bristol borough, has found it necessary to be so economical with water that dripping are retained in order that a few pieces of clothing might be washed each day; and then the water is used to wash the floors, or do other needed scrubbing about the house.

Twenty-six wells have gone dry in Fallsington. All meadows and swamps in that vicinity are "dry as a bone." Usually at a swamp near the premises of Watson Satterthwaite, Fallsington, anyone trying to walk through would find themselves in water reaching to the hips. Today the swamp may be tramped through without the pedestrian getting so much as the soles of his shoes damp. John Larkin, whose farm is located between Fallsington and Emille, has found it necessary to have water carried for his 29 head of cattle for the past two months.

"The northwest section of Bucks County is harder hit than the lower section," said Mr. Greenwalt today, in speaking of the drought in the county and other sections of the state and states. "But, the folks in the outlying sections of the county, who are dependent upon their own wells, have been just barely able to get along."

The late corn crop is fairly well along stated Mr. Greenwalt, but the crop of potatoes for Bucks County will not turn out so well in his belief.

"The young grass is not along at all well," further remarked the farm agent, "and the county has really been drier than it was during the summer."

It is the hope of many that the rain of the night and today will do much to alleviate the need of water, at least assist materially toward allaying the fears of many farmers regarding possible field fires. With the warmer weather of yesterday and today hopes are again held out that water will soak into the earth before the winter freeze is upon the section.

Hallowe'en Social Will Be Held This Evening

The Harriman M. E. Church will conduct a Halloween social tonight for both the children of the church and the adult members.

The party for the children will be restricted to children of the church and this will be held in the basement from seven until 10 o'clock. It will be for children under 10 years of age.

The party for adults will begin at eight o'clock and will be held in the room on the first floor.

THE REFORMING INSTINCT

Love may be blind, but it is not stone blind. Perhaps it is near-sighted or suffers from cataracts, but sees it does in its strange way.

There is the case in point of the two young things who get married. Though the world assumes they believe one another perfect, the truth is each sees in the other certain needed improvements and is secretly resolved to effect the reform.

Take the man. He promises himself that after the honeymoon is over and they settle down to the serious business of married life he will cure his darling wife of that silly giggle or of chewing gum with too great show of enterprise.

And the wife. She is laying her plans long before the wedding to cure the most perfect and yet imperfect man of those little vices which annoy her but about which she is loath to annoy him until the knot is safely tied and sealed.

Brides and bridegrooms love "as is" but they have their fingers crossed. They take each other for better or for worse, with reservations which are effective when they are "at home to their friends."

This refining and reforming process may run smoothly if both parties to the contract possess tact and diplomacy and exercise them in bringing about those little "much-to-be-desired modifications." If one or both bluntly criticizes the other they generally "fight it out on this line if it take all winter."

Wouldn't matrimony be a dull and monotonous experience if one could find a mate made to order? The reforming or missionary instinct is common to all men, and matrimony affords it an ideal medium of expression.

AMATEUR DRAMA

Ever since the motion-picture business became a great commercial success the old quarrel between movies and theater has gone largely in favor of the former. This is, of course, to speak of them both with no glance at whatever of art there may be in them.

Financially and popularly speaking, the battle has gone steadily to the movies. The theatrical "road" has turned into a weedy path, overgrown from increasing disuse. The movies are housing themselves in palaces. While the town "opery house" grows duller and dustier each year, the village movie surrounds itself with the most sumptuous architecture.

A shift may soon be perceived if a trend now visible continues. In those towns where the cinema is most firmly entrenched the non-professional drama is taking hold. It will be something of a shock to the movies to find real competition in amateur theatricals.

The secret is that the new brand of amateur theatricals are not the old-fashioned society function known as the "home talent play." Nor is it what the director of one Little Theater says it was even ten years ago, "a parking place for wives."

Though one cannot get at all the complex reasons for the growing strength of the Little Theater movement, it seems clear that it offers better entertainment than the movies in giving so many an opportunity for personal activity.

No man is old until he feels like kissing a girl on the forehead.

The Handsome Man

By Margaret Turnbull

Illustrations by Irwin Myers W. N. U. SERVICE

Beyond the smoke and flames, after her first swift collapse against the shaking Jack, Roberta MacBeth lifted her head and listened. The shock had stunned them both and automatically Jack had stopped the car. What she heard made her turn to the flaming part of the bridge just behind them. Jack stretched out his hand to start the car again.

Again that agonized shout. This time it was plain to Roberta and Jack, too. "Bobbie! Bobbie! Wait! I'm coming."

Jack grinned an ugly grin. "He'll never get his car through that," he said, with a frightened look beaming him.

But Roberta's hand was on his arm. "Don't start up, Jack," she begged. "Wait until he comes."

"Like h—!! Let that Englishman gum things up? You're crazy." He put his foot on the self starter.

Roberta promptly struck him across the face and pulled on the emergency brake. Before Jack could recover himself she was out of the car and running toward the fire. Through it, staggering, she could see a tall form. "Bobbie! Bobbie! Don't be frightened!" Sir George called. "I'm coming."

Half sobbing Roberta MacBeth ran forward. "Sir George, oh Sir George, I'm all right! Don't! Don't!" Then she screamed.

Jack looked back. The tall figure over his clothes on fire, his forearm over his eyes, to shield them from the flames, came striding toward Roberta who, screaming, ran forward to meet him, flung her arms about him and began beating out the flames with her bare hands. And as she beat at them the man picked her up in his arms and ran toward him.

The flames were licking nearer. They were terrific! Another bit of the roof caught and, with a roar, the fire leaped forward. The bridge behind them was like a funnel full of flames.

It was too much for Jack. He started the car, determined to get out of it at any cost. As for the girl, if she was fool enough to stick by that fellow she could stick, he was not going to wait for her. The wind was blowing the flames toward him now. Half in despair of his carefully laid plans, half out of a desire to justify his actions, he gave a loud call:

"Come on, Roberta!"

There was no reply, but as the car started it was suddenly checked. Jack had forgotten that his enemy was six foot three, but Sir George had not. As he saw the only hope for the girl and himself about to be taken from them, he dropped the girl and flung himself forward on the running board. One arm stole about Jack's neck. As the machine bounded forward wildly, Roberta screamed again and the car came to an abrupt stop.

A voice in Jack's ear had said: "Shut it off, you fool, until the girl gets in, or I'll strangle you. I don't mind telling you I'd enjoy doing it." Sir George, still with his hand on Jack's neck, motioned to Roberta to get in.

"Now you can hurry, my man, as you've never hurried before. You'll hear something presently when the flames reach my car."

He released Jack's throat, as the girl climbed in, but still on the running board with his hand on Jack's arm, they dashed for the other side. There was a muffled explosion.

"There goes Ray's car," Sir George called to Roberta, smiling at her with an absurd, singed and blackened face, like a man badly made-up for a minstrel show. "And I was worried about not having enough petrol." He leaned heavily on Jack's shoulder and shouted in his ear: "Here come the fire engines! We have only one chance in ten of getting off this bridge on dry land. Unless you rip out a little speed it will be a spectacular plunge into the Delaware for us."

"Oh, hurry!" screamed Roberta. The fire was running along the roof. The exit toward which they were making was screened with smoke, with here and there a little darting, flickering tongue of flame.

"To the left!" Sir George shouted in Jack's ear. "There's less fire there, and sound your horn, you fool! Make those idiots hear."

The horn sounded again and again. Through the smoke they could see people running hastily. Roberta could hear them call. "There's a car! Look out! There's a car coming through!" But the village fire engine was at the entrance filling more than half of it and Jack was wildly swaying from side to side.

"To the left!" roared Sir George and then he relinquished his hold on Jack and, gathering all his strength, leaped over and half-lifted, half-pulled Roberta across behind the driver. They rolled together off the car as Jack jumped, and the car smashed into the fire engine.

CHAPTER XIII

Sir George opened his eyes to a Dantesque world on fire, or so it seemed to him. It was full of shouting, too. After a moment he saw that the bridge was flaming and burning to the skies and the noise was the shouting of the crowd at the collapse of the main part of the bridge. It was a tremendously spectacular picture, quite terrible in its beauty.

He was about to give himself up to contemplating it, when his only half-awakened mind began to speculate where he was. Then as he moved slightly his whole mind was suddenly alert. He was in frightful pain, but that fact somehow did not puzzle him as much as the question, Where was Roberta?

He must have said it aloud for from somewhere above him he heard a voice say very gently: "I'm here, Sir George."

He saw then that his head was on a woman's knee. It was Roberta's knee, and above him Roberta was bending solicitously with a very grimy face.

"You quite all right?"

"Oh, Sir George, I thought—I thought—" She shuddered.

"Don't." He put out his hand to touch her but he winced as he did so. "I say, Roberta, you are shaking me quite awfully," he said after an attempt to sit up.

"I'm sorry. Lie still, until I finish with your face. They have sent for a doctor."

"Oh, I scarcely need a doctor," he assured her. "It's only that I need a little rest, I think." He closed his eyes but he opened them immediately, however, to say, "Where's Jack? Is it Jack you need a doctor for?"

"No," Roberta answered shortly. "Jack's all right."

"Where is he?" Sir George asked, trying to rise.

"Oh, do lie still. Don't try to get up," Roberta begged. "It was the car that smashed, not Jack."

"Too bad," he murmured and then looked anxiously at the girl and tried to sit up again. "You won't go away with him, will you, Roberta, and leave me?"

He was surprised himself at the childishness of his plea and ashamed of the woe-begone voice in which he had made it.

But Roberta seemed to find nothing wrong with it. "Of course, I won't leave you. Close your eyes while I put this stuff over your poor burned face and hands."

She was gently spreading cold cream from a tube which she had taken from her vanity case over his face.

"Oh, that was what it was that hurt me." Then he opened his eyes and said again in an anxious voice: "Roberta, don't leave if I slip off again, will you?"

"I promise I won't leave you." "That's quite all right," he heard himself saying, and then he slipped off into something that seemed like a heavy black curtain of mist.

He was roused after while by a sharp pain that cut through all the curtains and clouds that hung about him, and brought him suddenly back to life again and conscious that competent fingers were busy about him. "I say, what do you think you're doing?" Sir George asked. "And who are you, anyway?"

"The doctor," a pleasant voiced middle-aged man said, "and your ankle isn't broken, only sprained."

"Thanks awfully. Glad it's no worse."

THE CHALLENGE TO REPUBLICANISM!

Only twice since the Civil War have the people of Pennsylvania turned from the Republican Party in the election of a Governor. The second experiment of that kind was in 1890 (for the gubernatorial term 1891 to 1895), so that for 35 consecutive years our State has been under Republican administration.

In this more than third of a century our State Government has grown from a relatively small enterprise employing only 169 persons and operating within a very restricted sphere at an annual expenditure of 12¼ millions of dollars, to a tremendous institution employing more than 26,000 men and women in every conceivable kind of service to the people, for which our expenditures now exceed 200 millions of dollars per year. That means some 800 millions during the Administration of the next Governor.

During the term of Gifford Pinchot (1923-1927) this State Government was administered in the interest of all the people of Pennsylvania. The same principle has been followed throughout the administration of Governor Fisher.

IN THE MAY PRIMARY THE REPUBLICAN VOTERS OF PENNSYLVANIA AGAIN NOMINATED MR. PINCHOT AS THEIR CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR.

SOME OF THOSE WHO OPPOSED MR. PINCHOT IN THE PRIMARY ARE NOW SUPPORTING HIS DEMOCRATIC OPPONENT, IN AN EFFORT TO DEFEAT THE WILL OF THE REPUBLICAN ELECTORATE OF THIS STATE.

The attack that is being made upon the Republican Party of Pennsylvania is an attack upon the Republican Party in the Nation—with a Presidential election only two years away. For in each of the two instances since 1860 when Pennsylvania went Democratic, the country went Democratic in the next Presidential election.

HIGH SCHOOL HOCKEY TEAM WINS AGAIN

By Leon Schiffer

The Bristol High hockey team annexed its second straight victory of the season yesterday, by defeating Richboro to the close score of 1-0.

Early in the first few minutes of the second half, "Mim" Rhode scored the Cardinal and Gray's first and only tally during the entire game by a clever feint which threw her opponent off guard and enabled her to place herself in a favorable scoring position.

Although both teams were extremely weak, on the offense and defense, Bristol had a slight edge over Richboro due to the fact that the Cardinal and Gray contains, by far, more experienced veterans.

Both squads battled off, and after the ball had traveled back and forth across the field for a successive number of times, the Bristol twelve received possession of the sphere in Richboro's territory. However, the try for a goal failed and the oval was immediately once more sent careening the length of the field. The first half ended with neither team having scored.

The second period, after "Mim" Rhode had scored Bristol's only tally during the first few minutes of play, was more or less a repetition of the first. Although Richboro was in a scoring position several times, the Cardinal and Gray's defense prevented them from securing their object.

Line-up:
Bristol: D. Santo, right wing; E. Whyatt, right inside; M. Rhode, centre forward; O. Whyatt, left inside.

K. Rhode, left wing
I. Nills, right halfback
Kallenback, centre halfback
J. DeLissio, left halfback
B. Still, right fullback
G. Still, left fullback
H. Arnold, goal

Referee: Miss M. Gable, American Gymnastic Union.
Timer: Francis Flagg.
Time of halves: 20 minutes.
Bristol substitutes: Schell, Kallenback, Dowawilo, Arnold.
Goal: "Mim" Rhode.

ANDALUSIA

On Saturday evening, November 8th, the ladies of the Cornwells M. E. Church will sponsor a sour kroust supper.

Miss Verna Flemming, of Shadybrook Farm, returned home for the week-end from College.

Trevose Boy Scouts Capture First Honors

The Scout meet was conducted by Southern Division Executive Robert K. Perry. William F. Livermore, Jr., county scout executive, was chief judge assisted by Skipper A. K. Haynes and Ship Committeeman Charles A. Hellyer, of the Bristol Sea Scout Ship. H. B. Berry, Scoutmaster of Bristol Troop, No. 5, was scoring and timing the contests. The judges, judging on a basis of five, three, and one points for first, second and third places, respectively, announce the final results of the meet which gives Trevose, 54 points; Churchville, 21 points; Ivyland, four points; and Siles, one point.

The Trevose troop is led by Scoutmaster William Forpaugh, ably assisted by Assistant Scoutmaster Vance Forpaugh. This unit is sponsored by the lower Southampton Parent-Teacher Association who appointed as troop committeemen, Rev. A. B. Davidson, Richard Kleinert, Sr., Harry C. Lamb, J. B. Maul, Harry Meyers, E. J. Rittenhouse, Samuel R. Russell and Franklin West.

On Wednesday evening, November 5th, at 7.30, the Delaware Valley District troops will compete for district championship in the Newtown High School, and two days later, on the seventh, the lower Bucks district will meet in the Bristol high school auditorium. The district champions will meet in the Armory in Doylestown on November 17th for the county championship. The Scout meets are looked upon by the Scout leaders in Bucks County as the greatest opportunity to check up on the past year's work in Scouting.

CHILDREN ALMOST HATE CROSS, NERVOUS MOTHER

"My children almost hated me, I was so cross. Thanks to Vinol, my nervousness is all gone and we are happy again."—Mrs. T. Johnstone.

For 30 years doctors have prescribed Vinol because it contains important mineral elements of iron, calcium and cod liver peptone. The very FIRST bottle brings sound sleep and a BIG appetite. Nervous, worn-out people are surprised how QUICK Vinol gives new life and pep! Tastes delicious. Harry H. Headley, druggist.—(Adv.)

GOOD
WHY YOU SHOULD USE

KOPPERS
RAINEY-WOOD
COKE

For Heating
Your Home

- 1. More Heat—
No matter how cold the weather, Koppers Coke will give you heat and plenty of it.
- 2. Quicker Heat—
A touch of the damper starts it. No waiting. No coaxing. Heat comes fast.
- 3. Steadier Heat—
It's nice, steady heat, too. Heat that keeps every nook and corner warm as toast all day.
- 4. Costs Less To Buy—
Even though it gives better results, Koppers Coke costs you much less than the solid fuels you burned before.
- 5. Costs Less To Burn—
It's more economical to burn, too. Altogether you will save at least two dollars out of every ten you used to spend.
- 6. Fewer Ashes—
You'll be surprised how little waste this improved fuel gives. A little pall holds all the ashes the average family gets in a week.
- 7. Less Shoveling—
Because it gives less waste, Koppers Coke eliminates most of the shaking, shoveling and carrying out of ashes. Furnace tending is made simple and easy.
- 8. Saves Your Furnace
Fuels that give a lot of ash fill up the ash pit and shut out the air. Thus grates are damaged. Koppers Coke has so little ash that this danger is practically eliminated. It's so easy to keep the ash pit clean. Use Coke and your furnace will give you better results than ever before.
- 9. More Carbon—
It's the carbon in fuel that gives heat. And Koppers Coke is almost all carbon. That's why you get more heat for your money.
- 10. Less Fuel—
Because it gives so much better heat, you'll burn less of Koppers Coke. Thus you save money in two ways—less fuel at less cost.
- 11. Easy to Handle—
Koppers Coke is so much lighter—so much easier to handle. A child can take care of it.
- 12. No Soot—
No smoke or soot. Koppers Coke is a clean-burning fuel.
